To: Matthias ^ 2

From: Matthias Felleisen

Subject: Personal Reflection

The most important lesson that we learned to use in our future work as software developers is to not duplicate code. We ran into problems because we did not write unit tests carefully and duplicated code. We had to change our interfaces a few times throughout the project and whenever we did that, we realized we had to change a lot of code which wouldn't have been the case if we didn't duplicate lines.